SummitAI California Consumer Privacy Act and Consumer Privacy Rights Act Compliance Statement

Starting on January 1, 2020, the California Consumer Privacy Act ("CCPA") governs how businesses handle the personal information of California residents. CCPA was amended by the adoption of the Consumer Privacy Rights Act ("CPRA") effective March 29, 2023. SummitAI LLC and its subsidiaries and affiliates (collectively, "SummitAI") is committed to our customers' success, including their compliance efforts with respect to the CCPA.

How does SummitAI address its customers' compliance with the CCPA?

For SummitAI's customers, SummitAI is a "service provider" under the CCPA. We process personal information only on behalf of our customers, pursuant to written contracts. Those contracts, which are already in place, permit SummitAI to process our customers' data (including personal information) only for the purpose of providing our services. While we necessarily have to process personal information submitted to any of our services, we do not sell that information to third parties.

How does SummitAI address consumer rights under the CCPA?

If you are an individual seeking to exercise your rights under the CCPA (as amended by the CRPA) please see our Privacy Policy for more information. Our Privacy Policy is aligned with the requirements of the CPRA and provides you with information about how SummitAI collects your personal information and how to exercise your rights with respect to that information.

Questions

If you or anyone in your organization has questions about how SummitAI helps your organization comply with the CCPA, contact compliance@summitai.com.